The Electropoise is an instrument for the
CURE OF DISEASE
WITHOUT MEDICINE.

BASED ON NEW THEORIES OF THE CAUSE AND CURE OF DISEASE, it deals with the electrical and magnetic conditions of the body and the gases surrounding it in the atmosphere, controlling these conditions as will. It is not electricity.
DISEASE is simply impaired vitality. The Electropoise constantly adds to the vitality and only assists nature in nature's way, to throw off the trouble.

taining testimonials from all states, and for the Excited Negroes.

The execution in Danville on Friday of James Lyles and Margaret Lashley, the man and woman convicted of the murder of George Lashley, has proved to be a wonderful sensation. The nerve and coolness displayed by the woman when facing death has been the talk of the town, and now there are hundreds of people who declare their belief in her innocence. The theory is that a guilty person could not have acted thus, and the superstitious negroes in all that section have suspended work almost altogether and stood about in knots discussing the events of Friday.

The negroes have been in a state of excitement as to the disposition to be made of the bodies of the executed criminals, which excitement was increased by a wild rumor that somehow gained currency Friday that Danville doctors would take possession of the bodies for dissecting, which rumor of course was false. There is a law on the statute-books which says that the bodies of executed criminals, when not claimed by relatives, may be claimed by the medical department of the University for dissecting purposes. Two weeks or more ago that department filed with Sergeant Boi-seau its claim for the body of Jim Lyles, and invited him to ship it by freight, packed in a whiskey or pork barrel, to Charlotteville. This request was promptly turned down by Mr. Boisseau, and he notified the University authorities that he would deliver in Danville, to their authorized agent, the body of James Lyles properly laid out in a decent coffin, and not crammed into a barrel.

A telegraphic correspondence Friday between the University people and Mr. Boi-seau was not completed at night and left the question of the final disposition of the body of Lyles in doubt. None of the relatives of Lyles or of Margaret Lashley came near the place of execution, and none of them claimed the privilege of burying them. The bodies remained Friday night in charge of Sergeant Boisseau's deputies, and no agent of the University applying for either, they were turned over to the undertaker, and he buried them in the public square of the colored cemetery.

The incident at the execution has added to the superstitions of the colored people, and they discuss the event with bated breath. The coincidence was this: When the prisoners ascended the scaffold, Rev.
Henry Barksdale, a sort of free licensed colored preacher, who the darkies say is especially gifted in prayer, standing between the man and woman offered an earnest prayer.
He prayed for the souls of the prisoners and that their fate should be a warning to evil doers and deter them from crime. In the course of the prayer he said: "O Lord, make this scene as in a looking glass in which the wicked may behold the awful sinfulness of sin." Just then several prisoners in jail, who had crowded at an upper window to try to see the execution, reached a small looking-glass through the bars and held it in such a position as to reflect the scene that they might see it in the glass.
Tom Randolph, a noted colored desperado, was holding the glass. The darkies regard this coincidence as a wonderful thing, foreboding some great calamity.

Why Sixty Seconds Make a Minute.
Why is our hour divided into sixty minutes, each minute into sixty seconds, etc?
Simply and solely, replies Max Muller, in "Fortnightly Review," because in Babylon there existed by the side of the decimal system of notation another system, the sexagesimal, which counted by sixties. Why that number should have been chosen is clear enough, and it speaks well for the practical sense of those ancient Babylonian merchants. There is no number which has so many divisors as 60; it being divided without a remainder by 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 10, 12, 15, 20 and 30.

The Babylonians divided the sun's daily journey into 24 passages, or 720 stadia.
Each passage or hour was subdivided into 60 minutes. A passage is about a German mile, or a little more than four and a half English miles; and Babylonian astronomers compared the progress made by the sun during one hour at the time of the equinox to the progress made by a good walker during the same time, both accomplishing one passage.

The whole course of the sun during the 24 equinoctial hours was fixed at 24 passages, or 720 stadia, or 360 degrees. This system was handed on to the Greeks, and Hipparchus, the great Greek philosopher, who lived about 150 B. C., introduced the Babelo-nic hour into Europe. Ptolemy, who wrote about 140 A. D., and whose name still lives in that of the Ptolemaic system of astronomy, gave still wider currency to the Babylonian way of reckoning time. It was carried along on the quiver of traditional knowledge through the Middle Ages, and, strange to say, it still survives in the French revolution.
For the French, when revolutionizing weights, measures, coins, and dates, and subjecting all to the decimal system of reckoning, were disturbed by some unexplained motive to respect our clocks and watches, and allowed our dial to remain sexagesimal—11thly, Babylonian—each hour consisting of sixty minutes.
